MONROE MITES.

I will merely describe and cull a few notes of interest from this far away and very picturesque little burg, nestled, as it is, in the mountains on the east, making it so cozy and pleasant as well as a veritable health resort.

On the east of Monroe is found a complete network or series of springs, ranging from the boiling point to clear, cold drinking water. It is said you can boil an egg within five feet of perfectly cold water, thus it will be seen a fine chance is waiting for some enterprising person, or concern, to establish a fine bathing and health resort. They have at present a box 6x12x5 feet, which is protected from the idle passer-by's curious gaze only by the hills native so bountifully provides. It is said that any temperature wanted can be secured by merely turning in the warm or cold water. The medicinal properties of these springs are of the best, being fully up to our Warm Springs north of Salt Lake, and with the improvement that the water is neither salty, nor sulphury, and can be drunk with a relish, furnishing an excellent tonic. Some day these excellent qualities will be realized and taken advantage of by some far-seeing person or persons.

The chief resource of Monroe are:
Agricultural and stock-raising, especially the latter, the people being quite largely interested, and at present there is quite a desire to improve their stock, that is, dispose of the "scrub" and substitute the Holstein Friesian cattle.
Mr. J. M. Martin, of Provo, has recently passed through here introducing this famous breed, and finds that it won't be long before, at least Sevier County, will lead out with Utah stock interests. Mr. Martin intends driving a herd of Holstein down through Southern Utah resultant from the interest manifested.

Messrs. C. P. Christiansen and Augut Johnson, boot and shoemakers of Monroe, both join in an invitation to any shoemakers to make Monroe their home, as they cannot supply the demand for these commodities. This is a chance for some one to build himself a home in a fast settling up country.

Monroe is presided over ecclesiasti-cally by Bishop Cooper an old resident of Salt Lake, who, under his charge, is rapidly filling up.

The Methodists and Presbyterians have quite a stronghold here as I find is the case in all the southern towns of the Territory.
It seems strange that the Monroe Flour Mills should be allowed to go into dilapidation, but it is perhaps on account of the excellent flour furnished by the Elsinore Flour Mill, very ably run by Messrs. Bertelson & Son, of Elsinore, a town about five miles west of Monroe.

Elsinore is a town of about 500 inhabitants, presided over by Bishop James I. Jensen. This is a very pleasant, quiet pastoral little town, chiefly remarkable on this account. We attended a social party here that was one of the best conducted affairs of the kind found in the rural districts of Utah.

The ready hand of welcome and cordiality was strongly shown here as it is in most of the southern towns of the Territory.

The chief hotel is conducted by Mr.
Chris Jensen, as fine a "mine host" as can be found in the west.

The enterprising citizens of Richfield, Elsinore and Joseph City, have organized themselves into a company styled the Richfield Canal Company, and constructed a canal commencing at Joseph City, continuing to Richfield, a distance of about eighteen miles, which furnishes irrigating water to a large tract of country, otherwise almost useless.

The water is taken from the Sevier River, a stream that is much larger than is generally known by those unacquainted with this country.

I have more notes from the sunny south which I will send soon.
